Become a Lung Cancer Support Group Facilitator

As a lung health advocate, we want you to share your knowledge, expertise and people skills to help enhance the well-being of individuals who are facing lung cancer.

American Lung Association Lung Cancer Support Groups are regularly scheduled, in-person meetings that give participants the opportunity to learn about important lung cancer topics while getting the support of others in the group.

As a facilitator, you will get support from the American Lung Association through a robust implementation guide, resources and sample topics.

Learn more about American Lung Association Lung Cancer Support Groups at Lung.org/lung-cancer-support, or contact LungCancerSupportGroups@lung.org about becoming a facilitator.